Sheep Incognito-Conni Tgel 2008-10-01 Welcome to the nation of sheep It is a country both familiar and fantastical, where sheep can be political animals, but more often are fluffy, quirky and as cute as can be. Professional artist Conni Togel has become a shepherdess of sorts, painting her Sheep Incognito series has delighted audiences and art collectors around the world. Along with the paintings, Conni wool gathers, commenting on her work, her life and how she creates her flock of friends. Sheep Incognito is a moving account on the evolution of her sheep. It provides a glimpse into the artist’s studio world and the sheep’s rather peculiar minds, along with some never before seen drawings, sketches and more than 110 paintings of the Sheep Incognito series. A true treasure trove of Sheep Incognito.

Hip-Hop Japan-Ian Condry 2006-10-11 In this lively ethnography Ian Condry interprets Japan’s vibrant hip-hop scene, explaining how a music and culture that originated halfway around the world is appropriated and remade in Tokyo clubs and recording studios. Illuminating different aspects of Japanese hip-hop, Condry chronicles how self-described “yellow B-Boys” express their devotion to “black culture,” how they combine the figure of the samurai with American rapping techniques and gangsta imagery, and how underground artists compete with pop icons to define “real” Japanese hip-hop. He discusses how rappers manipulate the Japanese language to achieve rhyme and rhythmic flow and how Japan’s female rappers struggle to find a place in a male-dominated genre. Condry pays particular attention to the messages of emcees, considering how their raps take on subjects including Japan’s education system, its sex industry, teenage bullying victims turned schoolyard murderers, and even America’s handling of the war on terror. Condry attended more than 120 hip-hop performances in clubs in and around Tokyo, sat in on dozens of studio recording sessions, and interviewed rappers, music company executives, music store owners, and journalists. Situating the voices of Japanese artists in the specific nightclubs where hip-hop is performed—what musicians and fans call the genba (actual site) of the scene—he draws attention to the collaborative, improvisatory character of cultural globalization. He contends that it was the pull of grassroots connections and individual performers rather than the push of big media corporations that initially energized and popularized hip-hop in Japan. Zebra, DJ Krush, Crazy-A, Rhymester, and a host of other artists created Japanese rap, one performance at a time.

The Oxford Book of Theatrical Anecdotes-Gyles Brandreth 2020-10-08 This is the ultimate anthology of theatrical anecdotes, edited by lifelong theatre-lover Gyles Brandreth in the Oxford tradition, and covering every kind of theatrical story and experience from the age of Shakespeare and Marlowe to the age of Stoppard and Mamet, from Richard Burbage to Richard Briers, from Nell Gwynn to Daniel Day-Lewis, from Sarah Bernhardt to Judi Dench. Players, playwrights, prompters, producers—they all feature. The Oxford Book of Theatrical Anecdotes provides a comprehensive, revealing, and hugely entertaining portrait of the world of theatre across four hundred years. Many of the anecdotes are humorous: all have something pertinent and illuminating to say about an aspect of theatrical life—whether it is the art of playwriting, the craft of covering up missed cues, the drama of the First Night, the nightmare of touring, or the secret ingredients of star quality. Edmund Kean, Henry Irving, John Gielgud, Laurence Olivier, Ellen Terry, Edith Evans, Maggie Smith, Helen Mirren—the great 'names' are all here, of course, but there are tales of the unexpected, too—and the unknown. This is a book—presented in five acts, with a suitably anecdotal and personal prologue from Gyles Brandreth—where, once in a while, the understudy takes centre-stage and Gyles Brandreth treats triumph and disaster just the same, including stories from the tattiest touring companies as well as from Broadway, the West End and theatres, large and small, in Australia, India, and across Europe.

Elemental-Luther E. Vann 2008 : ELEMENTAL: The Power of Illuminated Love is the product of two individuals’ combined creative and spiritual visions. It features some 64 paintings by celebrated artist Luther E. Vann with more than approximately 50 accompanying poems and two essays by award-winning author Aberjhani. The art, spanning the early 1970s to 2007, expresses Vann’s perception of spiritual principles active in the personal and pubic lives of people in New York and Savannah. Introductory essays comment on Vann’s life and his art. The poems complement the art with themes that explore issues like war, homelessness, the nature of love, and expanded spiritual consciousness.

The Poems-David Herbert Lawrence 2013 "[The] third volume completes both the Cambridge Edition of D. H. Lawrence's Poems and the Cambridge Edition of the Works of D. H. Lawrence, in which it is the fortieth volume. The uncollected poems and early versions presented in the volume offer a new idea of the scope and scale of his verse-writing. The poems that Lawrence saw published in seven collections during his lifetime, and that appeared after his death in a further two collections, Nettles (1930) and Last Poems (1932), are assembled, edited and annotated in Volumes I and II of the Cambridge Edition of The Poems. Volume III gives access to more than 120 poems which Lawrence either chose not to collect or was, for various reasons, unable to collect during his lifetime, and which have therefore been largely neglected. The volume also includes more than 190 early and variant versions"--

The Outlaw Bible of American Poetry-Alan Kaufman 1999 Serving as a primer for generational revolt and poetic expression, this collection brings readers the words, visions, and extravagant lives of bohemians, beatniks, hippies, punks, and slackers. 50 photos & illustrations. Readings.

Psalms-Maḥmūd Darwīsh 1994 Ben Bennani’s translations of Darwish give me a thrill. I am very moved by these poems; they make a beautiful book. -- James Tate. {Darwish} is one of the most widely acclaimed poets writing in Arabic today. -- Nimrod. {His is} the foremost poetic voice of the Palestinian struggle. -- The Harper Collins World Reader.

Justice for All-Alex Stolis 2014-07-26 "Justice for All" exposes a world in which the voices of the abandoned bear witness to society’s failure. In the last 35 years more than 1200 people have been executed in the United States despite numerous cases of wrongful conviction, and the often arbitrary and discriminatory sentencing of crimes. In poems that explore lives and deaths defined by violence, Alex Stolis tries to find the people behind the locked doors and last words of modern crime and punishment.

Conversation Starters in a Language No One Speaks-Bob Lucky 2018-10-13 Bob Lucky was educated at Dartmouth College and holds an MA in Cultural Anthropology from the University of Washington, Seattle, and an MFA in Creative Writing from The University of Texas at El Paso. He currently lives and works in Saudi Arabia. His fiction, nonfiction, and poetry have appeared in various journals such as Flash, Rattle, KYSO Flash, Modern Haiku and Haibun Today. His chapbook "Ethiopian Time" (Red Bird Chapbooks, 2014,) a collection of haibun, tanka prose and prose poetry, was an honorable mention in the Touchstone Book Awards. He is an editor at Contemporary Haibun Online.

Along the Flaggy Shore-Carlos Reyes 2018 In his tenth volume of poetry, Irish American poet Carlos Reyes returns once again to Ireland. The poems in this collection capture the stark rural life that now has mostly passed, pushed aside and forgotten with the arrival of the "Celtic Tiger." Sitka spruce has supplanted the peat bog, and the slane rests in the barn. The iconic haystacks that dotted the countryside are now replaced with huge black bags of silage. This book paints a lyrical picture of a world gone. As Yeats' said, a way of life "all changed, utterly changed." Carlos Reyes first came to Ireland in the early 1970s, when he purchased a three-hundred-year-old cottage in County Clare. Acadia National Park and Joshua Tree National Park among others have hosted him as poet-in-residence. When not traveling, Reyes makes his home in Portland, Oregon.

Walking the Arroyo-Debbi Brody 2020-03-20

A Shed for Wood-Daniel Thomas Moran 2014 American-Irish poetry from Daniel Thomas Moran. He lives in New Hampshire, and this is his seventh collection.

The Two-Headed Man and the Paper Life-Anatoly Kudryavitsky 2019-03-15 Anatoly Kudryavitsky's newest collection of prose poetry straddles the divide between the divine and the divined, between mythology and the mythic. Praised by Joseph Brodky and Dennis O'Driscoll, Kudryavitsky's narratives capture both the continental and the distinctly occidental--somewhere in history 'while walking through life's jungles.' A sublime collection with a wry sense of humor to boot.

In the Kingdom of Autumn-Daniel Thomas Moran 2020-05-05 "Moran's is an egalitarian poetry which will attract readers who do not usually read poetry and this is as great an achievement as any high modernist grail."Matt Haw Poetry Salzburg Review, Austria"Fierce argument is not his motive for writing poetry, but more a wish to repair and preserve time--with all the risks and opportunities that implies. Moran looks at the moment straight-on and makes it worthy of our attention. We are taught that unity, symmetry and beauty are judgments for art; I would add clarity, intensity and sincerity. These are real words for real people."Grace Cavalieri The Washington Independent Review of Books"Moran's work is a refreshing change after the syntactical pyrotechnics which contemporary poetry sometimes offers. It is a relief to find work that seeks profundity in the everyday, without inversions, or obscurity."Francis Spurrier Write Out Loud, London"Moran writes about simple, seemingly insignificant, everyday occurrences and he marvels at them. This is certainly not to say he looks for meaning in these occurrences; he does not. Rather, he is satisfied with an unreasoned fascination."Chloe Charalambous The Dundee Review, Scotland"A deceptive simplicity and the clarity of intentions in his phrases from the very first poem to the last. I'm reading it over and over again."Soful Azam Victoria University, Bangladesh

Perfect in Their Art-Robert Hedin 2003 Since Homer, boxing has been fertile ground for poets. The boxer-as-tragic-hero archetype seems to have particular power in the poems collected here; fatallyy flawed champs like Jack Johnson and Sonny Liston are poetic subjects at least as often as Joe Louis and Ali.

Merica, Merica, on the Wall-Andrew Lafleche 2019-01-03 Merica, Merica, On the Wall is the siren song for today's tumultuous sociopolitical climate. This poem of fifty sections, represents the fifty states, illustrating the good, the bad, and the worse concluding with the line, "Where is there an America to be made great again?"

Freak of Nature-Anastacia 2002

Looking for the Uncertain Past-Daniel Thomas Moran 2006

A Pardonable Offence-Andrew Lafleche 2017-06-18 A Pardonable Offence is filled with Andrew Lafleche's remarkably unsettling interpretations of reality. This singular new short story collection is brimming with intensity accented by an unexpected dark humor. The true moralist, one who makes himself ugly to expose the ugliness seen all around, Lafleche isn't afraid to challenge the boundaries of fiction with inimitable abandon. Among the stories are, 'A Pardonable Offence', a disturbing short which illustrates the blurred landscape separating circumstance and choice; 'Parallels', a four tale collective, presents a devastating portrait of the suffocating oppression consuming modern life; 'Clayton's Cabin', concerns a man's alienation amidst a bizarre and dehumanized world. The final tale, 'Therapy', a blackly humorous portrayal of a patient's stream of consciousness, reveals an agonized consideration of violence directed toward faceless victims and sexual relations which border on criminal. It is a dark revelation of an over conscious individual whose psyche flirts with a level of paranoia skirting schizophrenic tendency. Appalling, thought-provoking, and entertaining, A Pardonable Offence is Andrew Lafleche claiming his voice: extreme and provocative. This collection will delight his growing number of fans and new readers alike.

Ned Smiles-Allen Plone 2012-11-11 NED SMILES, a book written in rhyming couplets with compelling and colorful illustrations is about a young boy who just couldn't stop smiling. As he travels around town, his smile affects everyone he meets.

Snapshots in Memory of Ben-Alan D. Busch 2007-12-01 A devoted father, stricken with unimaginable grief, celebrates the life of his oldest son, Benjamin.

Poems: A Concise Anthology-Elizabeth Renker 2016-03-15 Presenting a broad range of fully annotated selections from the long history of poetry in English, this anthology provides a rich and extensive resource for teaching traditional canons and forms as well as experimental and alternate trajectories (such as Language poetry and prose poetry). In addition to a chronological table of contents suited to a literary-historical course framework, the volume offers a list of conceptual and thematic teaching units called "Poems in Conversation." Instructors will find the Conversations helpful for lesson plans; students will find them equally helpful as a resource for presentation and paper topics. Headnotes to each poet are designed to be useful to both instructors and students in the classroom: for instructors new to particular poets, the headnotes will provide helpful grounding in the most current scholarship; for students, they will provide frameworks and explanations to help them approach unfamiliar texts. As a unique feature in the current market, this anthology also incorporates contemporary song lyrics from alternative, indie, rap, and hip-hop songs, fully integrated into the Conversations as rich material for teaching in the undergraduate classroom.

I Love You Too-Amit Kalantri & Ketan Kalantri 2011-01-01 Most guys fear expressing their feelings to a girl mainly because of their fear of rejection. I Love You Too offers a solution to overcome this fear and express yourself to your girlfriend, the girl of your dreams, your fianc?e or your wife in a way that will definitely win her over. I Love You Too offers romantic lines in the form of quotes, which are creatively thought of, metaphorically compared and sensitively designed. We are sure that any of these quotes said to your love, will bring a beautiful smile to her face. Once a girl smiles it is clearly a positive indication of interest from her. Each of the love quotes offered in I Love You Too can be made into a topic of conversation, resulting in a lively interaction with your soul mate. So dear reader, go ahead and enjoy them!

I Luv My Lyf-Chital Mehta 2009-04-01 Chapter One The shrill voice of the alarm woke up Nisha in the wee hours of Monday morning. She turned in her bed tossing and twisting not wanting to spoil her sleep. After turning off the alarm for the fourth time, she squeezed her eyes to adjust her eyesight and look up to her alarm clock. It was seven oâ€™ clock. It happened to her occasionally. She found it irritating to open her eyes to see clearly, after she shut her eyes for long hours. She did not have the perfect eyesight but her contact lenses aided her to see the things, which she wanted to see. It was her first day of college. The day every collegian looks forward to. Nisha was no exception. She had intended to start the day by rising up early and deciding which costume would she fit into. All her plans were washed away when her sleep took over. She always had trouble in getting up early. Sometimes, it made her think, "Why in the world did days have to start in mornings. Wouldnâ€™t it be better if it were in noons"? Much to her day dreaming, she realized she was getting late. Nisha was not a girl of speed but she was fast enough to get dressed before her bus arrived. She hurriedly rushed into the bathroom in her favorite pink three fourth pajamas. She would not sleep in anything else if it were not for her pajamas. She brushed hard to make her off-white yellowish teeth look polished teeth but in vain. No amount of toothpaste was going to change that awful color of her teeth. Having a quick bath, she wore on her new churidhar. Not that she did not wear jeans, but she wanted to get a look at the way people dressed in her college, which was why she choose a simple looking yellow outfit with black stripes. She neatly tied her light brown â€™blackish colored hair into a ponytail, which swayed side ways when she walked past the doors searching for her bag..... ABOUT THE AUTHOR Chital Mehta is currently residing in Chennai, Tamil Nadu. "I Luv My Lyf" is her debut novel. She believes that life is gift which has to be treasured and cherished each day and every minute. She is working as an associate software engineer. She can be reached through e-mail: chital_mehta@yahoo.com

Lane Changes-David Lawrence 2007 In this fifth book by Lawrence, these poems are at once wry, lucid, lunatic, energetic, pithy, dark.

Bread, Hashish, and Moon-B. M. Bennani 1982

No Diplomacy-Andrew Lafleche 2015-04-30 Everybody writes a hero story. Publicists describe them as gritty. Their authors undoubtedly write in standard form and recycled words: "Nothing could have prepared me for what happened next..." No Diplomacy bucks this trend. Unlike anything previously published, No Diplomacy is the antithesis to a superhero story. It's one you can't unread. Narrated with the cynicism of an infantry soldier and provoked by the ubiquitous question, "Have you ever killed someone?" No Diplomacy delivers an explicit documentation of a soldier's experience in combat, that once you start, you will not put it down until it's finished. Written by a former Canadian infantry soldier, the direct language used in this first person narrative subjects the reader to an uncomfortably vulnerable account of events which took place during the summer of 2010 near Panjwayi District, Afghanistan.

Splinters Of Bone-B. M. Bennani 1974-06-30

In the Suburb of Possible Suicide-David Lawrence 2020-02-16 In the Suburb of Possible Suicide originally titled Suicide Club was a quarterfinalist in Screenwriters Magazine and was an honored recipient of the "No Borders" distinction at the IFFM at the Angelika Theater, 1996. It is the story of a teenager, Joshua Victor, whose parents move him from the middle-class town of East Meadow to the rich village of Great Neck Estates in 1962 in the hopes of getting him to improve his young life and become a better student. But Joshua goes from the sunshine of the middle class to the dark leafiness and trees of well-to-do Great Neck. He feels like an outcast, falling in with a bad crowd and becoming more self-destructive. He cuts himself with razors and breaks his hand against the wall. He plays with self-destruction but never destroys himself. He is going through the confusion of adolescence. He is Hamlet. He is Holden Caulfield. He is suicidal but does not commit suicide. The slogan of this coming of age story is that sometimes life undoes us. But if we pick up the pieces we can survive and flourish. David Lawrence has published more than nine hundred poems in North American Review, Midwest Poetry Review, Chicago Tribune, California Quarterly, William and Mary Review, Confrontation, ACM, Folio, Laurel Review, Poet Lore, Mudfish, Hawai'i Review, People Magazine, New Laurel Review, Coe Review, Green Hills Literary Lantern, New Delta Review, Minnesota Review, etc. He has published a thousand articles in historical periodicals, such as "Daily Caller" and "American Thinker." His book The King of White Collar Boxing (Rain Mountain Press) was a finalist for the Bakeless Nonfiction Prize (Breadloaf).

Morning at Mount Ring-Anatoliï Kudriïaïvitïskii 2007

In Praise of August-Daniel Thomas Moran 1999

As I Sit in My Garden-Allen Plone 2019-01-30 As I Sit In My Garden is the story of a child's garden party where she and her dog sit sipping tea and sharing with the many visitors who join her. Her guests include the birds, insects, butterflies and bees that take joy in her garden every day. Never alone, this collection of friends is all she needs to feel connected to the world.The author, Allen Plone, writer and director of many children's television shows, DVDs and children's music spends a lot of time in his garden, watching, and, yes, talking to the many who come to call. A visit from his very special friend, Anna's hummingbird, inspired this story as did his dog, Rufus, who loves warming himself in the sun.
